MARSHALL MURAT: Cavalry Charge at Eylau.

[We copy the following thrilling description of one of fiercest fought bat-tles that ever shook the thrones of Europe, from J. T. Headley's book of Napoleon and his Marshals."]

This battle, fought in midwinter, in 1807, was the most important and bloody one that had yet occurred. France and Russin had never before opposed such strength to each other, and a complete victory on either side would have settled the fate of Europe. Bonaparte remained in possession of the field, and that was all-no victory was ever so like a defeat.

The field of Eylau was covered with snow, and the little ponds that lay scattered over were frozen sufficiently hard to bear the artillery,--Seventyfive thousand men on one side, and eighty-five thousand on the other, arose from the frozen fields on which they had slept the night of the 7th February, without tent or covering, to battle for a continent. Angereau on the left, was utterly routed early in the morning. Advancing through a snow storm so thick he could not see the enemy, the Russian cannon mowed down his ranks with their destructive fire, while the Cossack Cavalry, which were ordered to charge, came thuudering on, almost hitting the French infantry with their long lances before they were visible through the storm.

Hemmed in and overthrown, the hole division, composed of 16,000 one vast slaughter-house. whole division, composed men, with the exception of 1,500, were captured or slain. Just then the snow storm clearing up, revealed to Napole-on the peril to which he was brought, and he immediately ordered a grand charge by the whole Imperial Guard and cavalry. Nothing was farther from Bonapart's wishes or expectations than the bringing of his reserve into the engagement at this early stage of the battle; but there was no other re source left him. Murat sustained his high reputation on this occasion, and proved himself for the hundredth time worthy of the great confidence Napoleon placed in him. Nothing could be more imposing than the battle-field at corpses were scattered thick as autumn this moment. Bonaparte and the emleaves over the field. Every form of "don't be official. To-day the steamer Indiana came in from below, with one of the most precious freights that ever floated on Lake Erie. It had no less than twenty-seven School Mam's, all from New England, and consigned to the West, where they are going to scatter through the country, and teach the district schools. O, heavens! what a goodly sight. Twenty-seven rosy cheeked girls, with each a book in hand, a reticule in which their keepsakes and other mementoes of love and affection, bestowed by parting friends, were closely kept, and with hearts swelling with ambition and hope all content to leave their native hills and peaceful New England homes, for the strange climes of the West. The Whig County of Ohio.

There is an article on the first page with the above caption, from the Marietta Intelligencer, claiming that Washington is the Whig county of the State, because it gave a larger Whig majority this year, than it did in 1840-and the Editor adds that he has not heard of any other county in the State that has done so well. We request the brother to turn his attention to the vote of Union county in the above years and he will learn that there is one other county in the State that gave larger Whig majority in 1847 than it did in 1840.—The largest majority given in 1840, being for President, was 369-for Governor 326.—In 1847, the m jority for Senator was 386; for Representative 360, Auditor of State's Office, Columbus, October 27, 1817.

Sir-The Fund Commissioners of each county are required by the fifth for the distribution of this State's prosection of the "act to provide for the portion of the surplus revenue-Swan's payment of the domestic creditors of the State of Ohio," passed 13th March, transmit a copy to this office without 1843, vol. 41, page 80, to have the principal of the surplus revenue received by the county from the State Treasury, collected on the first of January. 1850, for the purpose of redeeming the State Bonds issued under that act. It was also provided, that the time of payment should be extended until the 1st of January, 1853, te any county electing to pay annually not less than onetenth of the amount originally invested in such county. The third section of the act of 11th March, 1845, vol. 43, page 72, requires the County Treasurers to pay quarterly to the State treasurer, all moneys received by them for the principal of surplus revenue. By the aet of 27th February, 1846, vol.44, page 68, it is provided, that the Audihereafter perform all the duties required of the County Fund Commissioners. And it is further provided by the act from the Court of Common Pleas of 32, that it shall be the duty of the County Auditor and Treasurer, to which they shall have neglected to deliver over to the Auditor the notes, bonds, mortgages, papers and books pertaining to the surplus revenue, or in which the Fund Commissioners shall not have accounted for, and paid over to the Treasurer of their county, all moneys and funds in their hands, or with which they are properly chargeaing the surplus revenue collected and WOULD respectfully inform the citizens paid over to the Treasurer of State.

You will see by these provisions of law, that it is important that vigorous measures should be taken, (where they have not already been adopted,) for at the south end of South street, any arthe collection of the principal of the ticle of CABINET FURNITURE that surplus revenue.

In all the counties in which measures the debtors should be immediately notified that the amount due by them will be required to be paid in yearly or semi-annual instalments, so that the whole amount can be collected before the first of January, 1850.

In every case in which the debtor neglects to comply with the requisition for the payment of the principal, suit should be commenced without delay for the collection of the principal and interest.

Unless effective measures are taken for the collection of this fund, in every county, where they have not been adopted, it is feared that a number of the counties will be delinquent, while having furnished the same with entire others will have paid up punctually the whole amount loaned to them. prepared to card and spin wool, to weave This fund is pledged for the redemption and dress cloth on the shortest notice, in of the seven per cent, stocks of the the best style, and upon the following State, issued under the act of the 13th terms: of March, 1843, which become due in

The time is again near at hand, when the Representatives of the people of Ohio, will be convened at the Capital, to deliberate and pass upon matters pertaining to the common welfare. In those deliberations, and in the measures which shall result from them, every citizen in the State is immediately or remotely concerned. And as by the theory of our Government every citizen is constituted an integral part of the State, so should his sentiments and his interests, whatever they may be within the pale of the Constitution, be fairly reflected by the action of the Legislature. It is, indeed, not to be expected that in a community like the State of Ohio, embracing an extent of territory sufficient for an European empire, and teeming with a population of near two millions of souls, distinctness and prominance can be given to every individu-9 al view; but there are certain great 2 and fundamental points of State policy as well as of doctrine, which challenge the assent of numerous classes, if not of the entire community. And as the in-dividual often finds himself absorbed by these classes, so does he find that bis own particular interests are sufficiently guarded and protected by the policy which imparts "the greatest good to the greatest number"—while the rights of all are sacredly respected. By the enlightened policy of our State legislation within the past few years, measures have been adopted affording the people a local currency every way equal to gold and silver and for supplying the Exchequer with a revenue fully adequate to its emergencies. These salutary measures, of vital interest to the honor and welfare of the State and the people, were not brought into operation without a struggle of resistance from a party whose leaders openly avowed their purpose to restrict the circulating medium to gold and silver only-and who did not scruple to declar their purpose to use all means in their power to depress the credit of the State.

What has been thus gained, can be preserved only by the exercise of the most untiring vigilance. Opposition to these measures of State policy has indeed been rebuked at the ballot-box; but it still exists in all its virulence, and only waits the favorable opportunity to again manifest itself. "The snake has been scotched-not killed,

It will devolve upon the Legislature at its coming session, under the provis-ions of the Constitution, to apportion the Representatives in the General Assembly for the ensuing four years, among the several counties, according to the number of white male inhabitants above twenty-one years of age in each, and in such ratio that the whole number of Representatives shall not be less than thirty-six, nor exceed seventy-two. This duty we hope to see fairly performed, with all practicable approximation to equality. The iniquitous and anti-republican example and will not escape the attention of the majority, in the coming Legislature; and as that majority is responsible for the character and success of its meacounty, two miles West from the South- sures, it will xeercise a prudential care in adapting the means it employs to the end it contemplates.

Several important elections will have will be a petition presented to the coming session; and although we do Board of Commissioners of Union not anticipate that the session will be ple preparations will be made for affor-
